

EC-Engineering Oy is now Lico Oy

We want to clarify our company image and differentiate ourselves from other players in the industry by continuing our operations under the new name, LICO Oy. The name LICO reflects three essential features in our products; lightness, composite and component.

Through the decades, EC-Engineering has found it quite challenging to have other companies operating under the same company name in the market, even in the same industry with the same customers and products. Companies that provide similar services and products to the same target groups also operate under the EC derivative name. Additionally, the 'Engineering' term in the company's name has also misled potential customers by creating a strong image of the company providing pure engineering services.

Change of our company name does not change our daily operations. We will continue serving our existing and future customers by listening carefully their needs and values plus providing first class light weight solutions. Our other company information such as business identity code, address and invoicing routine remains unchanged.

With Best Regards,

LICO Oy

Arto Pitkämö

CEO